Annapolis Capital Newspaper Photography Contest: Howard Penn won first place in the nature category. The winning photo is a portrait of a snowy egret in display. It was taken in Sanibel, Florida. He also won the grand prize and 1st place in mammals in the Baltimore Zoo photography contest. The grand prize winner shows a bob white quail in the snow with the light coming from the left casting a shadow to the right of the bird. The first place in mammals is an extreme close up of the eyes of a snow leopard. Howard also won first in scenics and second in abstract in the county parks contest.

The first place photo shows a ray of sunlight coming from behind clouds and was taken during a concert at Quiet Waters and a second photo of a foggy sunrise over the water's edge which was taken on January 1st at Quiet Waters. Apparently Howard was not told which phot won so it had to be either a ray of sunlight coming from behind clouds and was taken during a concert at Quiet Waters or a foggy sunrise over the water's edge and was taken on January 1st at Quiet Waters.

Of course, items can be donated for the good of the club.
